A wicked problem is a problem that is difficult or impossible to solve because of incomplete, contradictory, and changing requirements that are often difficult to recognize. The use of the term "wicked" here has come to denote resistance to resolution, rather than evil. Another definition is "a problem whose social complexity means that it has no determinable stopping point".

The set cover problem is a classical question in combinatorics, computer science, Operations Research and complexity theory. It is one of Karp's 21 NP-complete problems shown to be NP-complete in 1972.. It is a problem "whose study has led to the development of fundamental techniques for the entire field" of approximation algorithms.. Given a set of elements  $\{,,,\dots\}$  (called the universe) and a ...

A Model of Diverse Problem Solvers. Our model consists of a population of problem solvers of limited ability who attempt to maximize a function  $V$  that maps a set of solutions  $X$  into real numbers. For example, the set of solutions could be the set of possible gasoline engine designs, with the value function generating the efficiency of various designs.
